WASHINGTON D.C. 20431

To Whom It May Concern:,

I am writing to endorse the Coherence Technology (CT) software program that you introduced to me in August 1994. The CT software was installed on sixteen Macintosh computers in the External Relations Department and the Administration Department's Graphics Section of the International Monetary Fund. Since that time, the staff in those departments have completed a questionnaire indicating the following benefits.

First, and probably most important to people who are trying a new software, all staff members reported that Quantum Byte was easily installed without glitches or bugs of any kind. CT software also interfaced with existing software without any compatibility problems.

All CT (products) users reported positive benefits in the area of personal and business relationships. Staff members reported smooth and easy interactions with others both at home and in the office. Almost all reported that they were drawn to work on their computers -- a necessity for "those who earn their living at the computer. There was also relief from the physical stresses and strains of working at the computer, such as eyestrain and aches in the neck and shoulder.

I am most pleased with the results of our initial experience with CT (Products), and am eager to begin testing the Windows product in my department. I want a Coherence Technology (unit) on my computer!

Thank you for the opportunity to test CT (products) and give our staff relief from the irritants that can definitely hamper creativity and productivity.

Sincerely,

Bret Hollander
Computer Systems Officer
